To make things even more confusing, I saw a description on another website for this shirt and they recommended scaling down . If too tight you should not be able to return for a refund or exchange. Btw, I'm thinking about buying the cascading shirt above and was curious about the fit. Oh yeah... damn it. I tried these two sizes and they look the same to me. I can't wait to get him. Sent from my iPhone using Tapatalk Messages 4,492 Location Texas ParabÅ ©ns for the adjustment and absence of your new coat. I have the same height and weight as you do, but a 43 breast and wear a big one in Seattle fit so you shouldn't be fine!! I have the same height and weight as you do, but a 43 breast and wear a big one in Seattle fit so you shouldn't be fine!! Thank you. I use a big size for most companies and was thinking of going with a big one. The added cost of the soy wax cruiser ($295) plus the finer fabric (6oz twill) is preventing me from buying it. I have a Filson Levi trucker jacket that I am a XL (I am 6'2" 185 with 42.5" chest). I'm 5'1", 185 lbs and 40" breast. I love my truck driver Gustin waxed, but it's equipped and doesn't allow much layers. Assuming it's from the '80s it's possible the rep gave me measurements for the Alaska fit, but I specifically mentioned the Seattle fit cascade shirt. Messages Worf 11,347 Localizes Ragged Edge of the Grid / Missouri Ozarks I picked up my first Filson outfit (alÅ© m from a chapÅ© u from a chess bucket). With your measurements and using a large one in the seattle adjustment you would not be to get one layer or two under it without problem. Its big size in the trucker jackets really fit almost the same as a middle. And you wouldn't need to layers if you're looking to wear the jacket into later fall and early winter. Hope this is helpful for possible future reference. reference.
